CIRCLING the CIRCLE

—Going to the Chamber of Commerce dinner tonight?

—The modern sheik is very often the living image of an unpaid tailor bill.

—Cupid is the manager of a two ring circus—the engagement and wedding rings.

—Canada is well on the way to becoming the second gold producing country of the world.

—Motor cars are now being used in Los Angeles to take bees out to districts full of flowers.

—Cotton consumed in the United States in January, 1928, amounted to 582,417 running bales.

—Every girl knows at least a score of men, any of whom, she could have married—had she asked them.

—The woman who can look at a hole in a newspaper without wondering what was cut out of it is yet unborn.

—Airplanes are beginning to replace the dog-teams of romance in carrying mails in Canada during the winter.

—The production of natural gas in the United States in 1928 should exceed 1,750,000,000 cubic feet with a valuation of over $400,000,000.

—A needed invention is a chemical process for rendering fire-proof the papers used for bank notes, checks and other important documents.

—Seven out of every ten persons in the United States are in the need of glasses; three out of every ten have poor eyesight because of refusal to wear glasses.

—The prediction is that the coffee on hand in the state of San Paulo on June 30, 1928, will be only 3,500,000 bags of sixty kilos each, compared with 15,500,000 on December, 1927.

—The trial and conviction of William Edward Hickman, who kidnapped and later murdered little Mary Parker cost the city and county of Los Angeles, California, $86,850.

—To the lady who called the Herald office to inquire if the black and white cat on the telephone pole was a pole cat, the answer is, "No, he was a victim of circumstances."

—The use of 110,000,000,000 cubic feet of manufactured gas in nearly 3,000,000 New York state homes and factories last year saved, or released for other purposes, 18,000,000 tons of hard coal.

—Circleville should have an ordinance prohibiting the posting of bills on telephone poles and fences around town. They present an unsightly appearance and make the city look like a circus in its town.

—There are 12.70 telephones for every 100 persons in Canada. The United States is the only nation which tops this record, with an average of 14.86 phones per 100. Telephone property and equipment in Canada has increased 156 per cent in the last two years.

—Several of the traffic lights had bulbs burned out yesterday and today motorists were confused whether to go or stop. There's a little danger there and the lights should be watched carefully to see that they are all burning. Otherwise, the city might be held liable for a damage suit.

Wednesday, March 7, has been set aside as the day. Plans for general observance by citizens of all races and creeds are being worked out today by the Union Ministers' association, originator of the idea.

The organization, composed of 500 ministers, adopted a resolution at yesterday's regular monthly meeting which read, in part: "Conditions in Chicago have reached a state where the ballot box is wantonly violated; where life and property are not safe; where the homes of citizens are menaced by bombs; and where crime, graft and corruption are increasing."

CORN THIEVES OBTAIN GRAIN AT TWO FARMS

Truck Used to Haul Away Loot in Night Raids, Sheriff Davis Is Told.

Corn thieves were active in Pickaway county Monday night, according to reports reaching the office of Sheriff Frank Davis.

Elmer Cook, who resides four miles south of Circleville on the Chillicothe road, reported that 50 bushels of corn had been stolen during the night from a crib which was located a considerable distance away from the house. A truck had apparently been used to haul away the grain.

The first report, however, was received late Monday night from Charles George, who resides eight miles southeast of Circleville near the Ebenezer church.

When horses he had penned in a field near the house began to roam around the yard of his home about 9 o'clock Monday night, George investigated. He found that a gate, which had been securely fastened, was wide open.

He then noticed that the door of a corn crib in the field was open and found that 20 bushels of corn had been taken. A truck was used to carry away the loot and the thief had carelessly left the gate to the field open, allowing the horses to escape. Deputy Sheriff Carl Porter answered the complaint and is continuing his investigation.

INTELLIGENCE OF POLICE IS HIT IN REPORT

Crime Wave Due To Inefficiency of Officers, National Commission Says.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(INS)—Inefficiency of police, due to the "lack of average intelligence," is blamed for this country's "Notorious crime record," in a report of the National Crime Commission, made public today.

The report was made by the committee on inefficiency of police and courts. Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, is chairman of the committee.

The report admits that courts and parole boards also have been at fault.

"But," it adds, "the most startling thing is the small number of criminals caught by the police."

Crime, the report said, would seem to be the safest business in which one could engage. The luckless individual who is arrested, it was said, must attribute his misfortune "to an act of God, as he would in case of disastrous storm, shipwreck, or earthquake."

Only two per cent of thieves are apprehended in Cleveland and St. Louis. Buffalo arrests men in three per cent of its robberies. New York, in 1925, made arrests in twenty per cent of its felonies. In 1924, arrests were made in fourteen per cent of New York's burglaries.

Further it was pointed out, the courts convict only a portion of the men brought to trial. The result, according to the report, is a "pre-scientific stage of evolution" so far as society's protection against criminals is concerned.

COMMITTEE OF SENATE LEARNS MINERS' PLANS

More Than 300,000 Men Will Leave Pits If Wage Settlement Is Not Made.

By KENNETH CLARK
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A new strike of 350,000 union miners in 12 states is threatened on April 1, united mine workers officials reported today to the special senate coal committee.

After nearly a week's investigation in Pennsylvania fields, the committee, headed by Senator Coolidge (R) of Idaho, returned to Washington today and prepared a report for the interstate commerce committee.

States which will be affected by the threatened walk-out include Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, Texas, Ohio and northern West Virginia. In these sections some union operations have been working under temporary wage agreements. All efforts thus far to negotiate a settlement have failed, union officials declared.

138,000 Now Out
At the present time about 138,000 men are on strike.

The committee collected about 200 pages of testimony on its trip. Instead of a written report, the sub-committee will relate orally to the full committee its experiences in the mine camps. A meeting was called for Thursday. The general investigation by the full committee probably will get under way next week.

In the committee's opinion some legislative remedy must be found to relieve the present strike conditions or unrest will spread to other industries, including the railroads, and affect thousands of persons. No program has been mapped out but a bill calling for federal supervision of the coal industry will be presented by one or two of the committee members. Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana already has introduced a bill to nationalize the mines.

Injunctions Sought
The greatest ill of the industry, the committee believes, is overproduction and oversupply of miners.

The committee was strong in its denunciation of the alleged misuse of injunctions in labor disputes. Senator Gooding characterized as "outrageous" the injunction which forbids strikers to congregate in the little church yard at Rossiter, Pa., to sing hymns. The senate judiciary committee is now holding hearings on the shipstead bill to curb the injunctive power of the federal court.

Activities of alleged communists among striking coal miners aroused Senator Gooding.

"We must get the I. W. W. by the throat and choke it to death," he declared. "If we don't, the gutters of our streets will run knee deep with blood. The industrial leaders of the country should fight this menace."

Millions of Dollars Will Be Paid American Companies in War Claims.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(INS)—Standard oil tops the list of big American concerns that will benefit by millions from the war claims settlement provisions of alien property legislation now in the final stages of congressional enactment.

Under awards of the German-American claims commission, Standard oil, through its New Jersey corporations, will receive $16,796,325. Twenty-six other corporations will collect awards ranging from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000 each; 14 will get $500,000 to $1,000,000 each; 17, between $200,000 and $500,000 each; 25 from $200,000 to $300,000 each and 63 from $100,000 to $200,000.

In addition there are still pending before the commission 16 claims where the awards are expected to exceed $100,000 each. The total of all these major awards will exceed $158,000,000, of which more than $100,000,000 will go to the 27 counties in the $1,000,000 and up group.

The 162 corporations and firms participating in this wholesale bill-collecting will each receive $100,000 on account as soon as the administrative machinery can be set up at the treasury to pay them off. Within six years they will have been paid 80 per cent of their total awards. The other 20 per cent being deferred pending receipt of Dawes plan reparations annuities from Germany sufficient to wipe out the balance.

DAIRY FEEDING TO BE SCHOOL TOPIC

Some cows produce 150 pounds butterfat, others produce 400 pounds per year. One cow will produce 4,000 pounds of milk, another 9,000 pounds per year. This same type of variation will occur as dairy farmers are compared. One receives high production from his cows and the other low.

Ivan McKellip, dairy specialist, Ohio State university, will assist H. S. Lewis, county agent throughout a series of dairy feeding schools designed to show some of the causes of this wide variation. Schools will be held at Atlanta school building, Tuesday, March 6, at 1:30 p. m.; Fox, Jackson township school building, Tuesday, March 6, at 7 p. m.; Saltcreek school, Wednesday, March 7, at 1:30 p. m.; Circleville, Farm Bureau Office, Wednesday, March 7, at 7 p. m.; Stoutsville, school building, Thursday, March 8, at 1:30 p. m. and Walnut school, Thursday, March 8, at 7 p. m.

Paris Style Hints

By ALICE Langelier

PARIS, Feb. 28—(INS)—Femininity, charm and gracious lines characterize the new collections now being shown at the dressmakers in Paris.

The mannish severity of a few years ago has been completely reversed. Women are once again settling into their own after the excitement of the war. Frills and dress fancies now usurp the conversation. Snippy, little tight-fitting skirts have gone the way of the bustle and train. Fullness at the bottom will be very prominent this season. Jewelry, which has undergone a period of unpopularity, is seen again in great quantities and will be worn more and more the coming season.

More perfume has been bought and used during the past six months than at any time since the war. Lace-trimmed handkerchieves are being tucked into bags which have become almost as important as hats. Milady now has one for every costume and not a general one to carry with them all.

This re-birth of femininity does not mean, however, that the desire for simplicity will be lessened. On the contrary, the vogue for smart, sophisticated simplicity will be heightened, but clothes will be designed so as to add softness to woman's figure and give her more feminine attraction. Femininity, this time will be emphasized by a subtle handling of line, color, design and a clever handling of trimming.

$8.70-$8.80; light Yorkers $7.75-$8.25; pigs $7-$7.75; roughs $6.50-$7.50; stags $6.50-$7.50.

TOLEDO, Feb. 28—(INS)—Hogs: Receipts 1,100; market 10c to 25c lower; heavies $7.50-$8; mediums $8-$8.50; heavy Yorkers and mixed $8.40-$8.60; light Yorkers $7.25-$7.50; pigs $7-$7.25; roughs $6.50-$7.

New Fascist Group To Arrest Speeders

ROME, Feb. 28, (UP)—Fascist militia will be employed in a new department of state activity when a special corps of blackshirt traffic policeman comes into being next month.

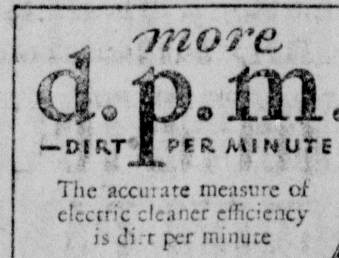

The new body will be called "milizia della strada," and its special work will be to regulate motor and other traffic on the main roads of the country.

Squads of the new corps will be stationed along the chief national and provincial roads, as well as on the motor-ways, and at the entrances to the large cities, where they will be empowered to stop speeding automobilists.

While there is no fixed speed limit for cars in the country, driving at a rate calculated to endanger life authorizes the police to make arrests.

Rugs harbor billions of germs, brought into the house on the soles of shoes. But there is a way to keep rugs almost germ-free. The Hoover, with its amazingly deep, thorough cleaning, removes this menacing bacteria. It outcleans other cleaners by the most astonishing margin, as proved by the remarkable d. p. m. London Fashion Notes

LONDON, Feb. 28—(INS)—In another ten years women will dress as simply as men.

That is the opinion of H. E. Tappe, a leading couturier of New York, who is at present paying a visit to London's fashion salons.

In an interview he declared: "Don't believe what you hear about longer skirts, and more femininity. Woman's remnant of savagery is expressed by her craze for gimcrack jewelry."

Tappe, who is evidently a confirmed admirer of early Victorian taste, then added, "The revolution of woman's dress began when she cut off her hair. She will never go back to the old days of graceful draperies and aesthetic decoration, in fact, in about ten years time she will dress as simply as men."

Tragedy Lurks in the Shadow of Seductive Rose Lights

ONE GAY GIRL LURES ANOTHER TO DANGER

Winifred Black Tells a Story That Has Many Parallels in Life But Heedless Youth Never Learns the Lesson.

By WINIFRED BLACK

SHE'S a pretty girl and she knows how to wear her clothes—good dancer, too, one of those swaying, swinging, lulling kind; roguish eyes—rather roving—dimples, a pretty foot, a pair of neat ankles; plays the ukulele, and sings all the moderns. You ought to hear her do "Sing Me a Baby Song" and "Are You Lonesome Tonight." And, oh, when she does "When the Mawmin' Glories Wake Up in the Mawmin'"—dear me!

Men like her—all the men—old men and young men, rich men and poor men, clever men and dull men.

College students and college professors, newspapermen in careless clothes and actors in the very latest from London—she likes all the men. They take her to parties and they take her driving and they take her dancing, but, of course, nobody seems to ask her to marry any of them, and if they did ask her, I don't believe she would marry anyone. She's having too much fun to settle down.

She sleeps till 11 o'clock, takes a nice hot bath with plenty of bath salts in the water, gets a marcel and a facial, rouges her cheeks, paints her lips, puts a saucy hat down over one eye, and by 1 o'clock she's sitting at luncheon somewhere with a big bunch of violets on her coat, or maybe a gardenia, and from that on she's out till two the next morning.

"Stepping" at hotels, at roadhouses, and at somebody's smart apartment up town; plenty to drink, plenty to eat, plenty to wear, four or five different parties every night—she should worry.

The other day she met a little girl from the country—such a nice little girl, good-looking, soft voiced and big-eyed—came to town to see the world—she had, the little country girl. Well, she has seen it all right, and now she's crying about it and her folks back home are heartbroken and the sweetheart in the country won't even hear her name mentioned. The girls she used to know whisper about her and wonder and wonder.

It all happened so suddenly, she met the little "Stepper" with the violets in the dressing-room of a swift cafe one afternoon and they struck up an acquaintance. That evening she went to a party and the next day they met at the same cafe. They went to another party with four men—four good-looking fellows they were, you could call them men if you felt that way about it, but they were really just boys—two high-school boys and two university boys. They took the girls on a party that lasted for two days, and at the end of the party the little "Stepper" ran out in the hall at the hotel where the party was and screamed. People rushed into the party and dragged the country girl out unconscious—and now there's a trial and the four boys are charged with a serious crime. The "Stepper" is amused and the little country girl is crushed.

Everybody is taking sides—some think the four boys ought to be sent to the penitentiary and some say what did the girls expect when they went on that kind of a party, and some—

Keep thinking of the mother of the little country girl and her brother and her little sister down home. I don't believe she meant any real harm either.

But after all, what did she expect—really?

In Cherapunji, India, there is an annual rainfall of 457.80 inches.

Congenital Cataract Can Be Overcome

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A LETTER comes from a worried mother asking about "congenital cataract." She wants to know its cause and what to do about it.

The popular idea is that cataract is a "skin over the eye," a film of some sort that shuts out sight. As a matter of fact it is not on the eye—it is in the eye.

Back of the colored part of the eye, behind the pupil is a structure called the "crystalline lens." In health, the lens is as clear and transparent as a well polished spectacle lens. It is not visible through the pupil; it is as readily seen through as a piece of plate glass.

If the "crystalline lens" loses its transparency, if it becomes milky and cloudy, then there is a condition which we call cataract. Lack of clearness of the lens, no matter what its cause may be, is cataract.

The ordinary form of cataract is called "senile cataract." It is so called because it comes in advanced life and is one of the symptoms of old age.

But once in a great while a baby is born with cataract in one or both eyes. This is congenital cataract.

Why does it come to afflict a tiny baby?

Before the infant is born, while it is being carried close to its mother's heart, it is absolutely dependent on its mother for nourishment and growth. Unless her health is good and all her functions are perfect, the unborn babe is in danger.

If for some reason there is ill health five or six months before the baby is born, one of the possible consequences is to have the nourishment of the tiny eye interfered with and haziness of the lens in consequence. Then the baby is born with cataract.

The eye is a remarkable structure. It is delicately and wonderfully made. The chief blood supply of the interior of the eye comes from a big artery which perforates the back of the eyeball and spreads out over the interior surface of the eye.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 29.

The world is mathematical and has no casualty in all its vast and flowing curve.

—Emerson.

According to the sidereal operations for this day things should move at a lively pace, but not in lines. There is foreseen action in new directions and in all that pertains to writings and publishing or promotion, but in public affairs, with inventions and those forces of higher service, a disintegrating influence may be felt. Be careful in travel and change.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively year, with new undertakings, promotion and publishing, as well as fresh contracts, flourishing, but travel, change and all angles of invention and planning higher forces may suffer. A child born on this day should be versatile, active and generally clever, but may be restless and unsettled to its detriment. Tact and diplomacy should be its key.

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING.

Among the Artistic Maori.

MOST of us fortunate enough to possess a coat of arms have it painted by a reputable artist, and hang it in our living-room or hall. Few of us have the tribal chiefs of New Zealand, far from concealing their, wear them emblazoned on their bodies. The designs are worked out in brilliant colors, and some are so intricate and involved that their entire bodies are covered with the weird symbols.

Every year the chiefs gather from all parts of the island and hold a ceremonial dance. At first thousands of these warriors participated. Now a mere handful assemble, for the Maori tribe is rapidly being civilized. Some of them have become expert farmers and dairy men; others are cattlemen. Most of them, however, have taken up some sort of agriculture in a practical way.

And the reason for this rapid modernization is this. The Maori is of a high order as is evidenced by the legend, mythology and folklore which have been brought down from father to son. His poetry, too, is remarkable, all things considered.

And his art is not limited to painting and literature alone. His carving on wood, too, is remarkable and many objects from his knife have found their way to the museums and shops of Western countries.

Indeed, in Roturua, the hot springs section of the island, there dwell a tribe of savages who are hereditary woodcarvers.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

When One Has Perception of Absurdities It Relaxes the Hard Realities and Gives a Better Idea of Proportion.

By DR. LOUIS E. BISCH

WHATEVER you do, keep your sense of humor. And if you have no sense of humor try by every means possible to develop one.

No personality adjunct is quite as valuable as the ability to perceive the absurdities of life.

So many things are really funny and ludicrous if only we practice getting the right slant in order to realize it.

Do as the irrepressible George Bernard Shaw. Turn everything upside down and laugh at it. Life is full of disappointments and regrets. Life is very earnest—much too earnest, in fact. Life is in many ways one continuous harassing grind.

Then why not lighten it as much as possible? Why not ease our way along as much as we can?

Why not laugh the struggle away? To be sure, we must not become careless just because we laugh.

But that, in the last analysis, is the least danger. The average person is much more likely to be too serious than to be too lighthearted.

The important thing to remember is that life is checkered with joy as well as sorrow. Some people, hundreds and hundreds, think only of the sorrow side. They forget the other side. Often they deliberately do not want to think of it.

Be sure to evaluate correctly what you see and hear, what you feel and do. Do not let the woes of other people nor your own woes weigh too heavily upon you.

Get the proper perspective on life. Read books on the philosophy of life.

Study biography and learn what some of the greatest have done and how they did it. Particularly study the way they laughed at life.

Fill your thoughts with pleasant memories. Get music into your soul, especially happy, rollicking music.

All these things will help to develop your sense of humor.

In order to see life in its humorous terms you must also practice serenity and calm. Get away from the bustling habit of yours of always being on the run, rushing here and there, from one thing to the other.

Keep the nerves as quiet as possible. Counteract exciting ideas with soothing ideas. Practice reflection in an easy chair after dinner each night.

Be wise. Study the follies of others.

Learn again how to smile at them. I say learn "again" because the chances are you have almost forgotten to smile. Make faces at yourself in the mirror until you burst out laughing.

A sense of humor carries with it tolerance and understanding. Don't take the ways of the world always at their face value.

When your sense of humor is well to the fore in your personality it makes you will rise superior to the pettiness of men. You will realize how much emotional red fire is burnt over nothing at all.

Do as Beaumarchais did: "I hasten to laugh at everything," he said. "For fear you will rise superior to the pettiness of men. You will realize how much emotional red fire is burnt over nothing at all."

A sense of humor cannot be developed overnight.

It takes time and patience—lots of it.

But when you finally acquire it, you would not swap it for a million.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Lillian Manages to Get Noel Away from the Group.

AS LILLIAN recounted the various vicissitudes of her camp dinner, I distinctly saw a little ripple of distaste pass over Philip Verit's usually gaucy face.

Whether it was caused by her mention of the primitively prepared dishes or by her impudent assumption that age was compelling him to watch his digestion, I did not know. Probably both angles of her chatter annoyed him, I decided, as I noticed that he ate but sparingly of the dinner which left everybody else stuffed to satiety.

We always plan these camp dinners, which because of the primitive cookery must be leisurely, long-drawn-out affairs, with waits between dishes, so that the finish with coffee and little cakes and watermelon desert comes at about sundown. Then we find lounging places far enough away from the cooking to enable Katie and Jim to have their own supper and burn up the picnic dishes, and we rest delightfully, listening to the surf and watching the sunset over the ocean while the men enjoy their after-dinner cigars and cigarettes.

It is the most perfect relaxation imaginable, and I generally wrap myself in a blanket and doze off for a little while when darkness settles down over the ocean and I no longer can watch the fascinating surges of surf toward the shore. But upon this evening I permitted myself no such indulgence. I had promised Noel Verit that he should have his chance of a word alone with Mary.

GOOD-NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

David Is Glad to Have Happy Giggles as a Friend.

DAVID was late getting home from town one evening and, as he walked through the woods, something moved in the weeds at the side of the road ahead of him.

Of course, David wasn't frightened, for at once he recognized Happy Giggles' name and, quick as a wink, the wee little elfin stood at his side.

"Good, I'm glad you heard me, Happy Giggles," David laughed. "I wasn't afraid, but somebody that fell among those weeds has wild-looking eyes." He pointed to a clump of weeds. Happy Giggles saw the wild-looking eyes but, instead of being scared, he laughed.

"Come on out, Mr. Pecary," he called. "It's only David, and he's one of the best friends I have. Come on and meet him. I know he has never seen a pecary before."

The strange animal, half pig and half wild boar, came slowly out from the clump of weeds. He walked so slowly that David had a good chance to look him over without seeming rude.

He was about three feet long and stood about twenty inches from the ground. His great big tusks sticking out of his jaws were so fierce-looking that David shivered. His body was shaped much like a pig's but its head, neck and shoulders looked like the pictures David had seen of a wild boar. His hair near the skin was white, but near the tips it was a chocolate brown. He had no tail to speak of, just a fleshy lump where his tail should have been.

"Mr. Pecary, this is David Dora," said the elfin when the animal had reached them. "I hope you and David will be good friends."

"I am always a good friend to any of Happy Giggles' or Squeeder's friends," growled Mr. Pecary. "But let me see if I can't make a friend of my path and I'll make short work of him. You see, David, I haven't a very happy nature."

Just what I thought when I called him Happy Giggles," laughed David. "You see, I'm new around these parts and I don't know you woodfolks as I do back home. I guess that's why you have those tusks, so you can fight."

"You guessed right," David, laughed Happy Giggles. "Mr. Pecary is one wild fellow when he is angered. Say, Mr. Pecary, show David just what you do when you see a stranger coming toward you."

Before Happy Giggles' had the words out of his mouth, the bristles on Mr. Pecary's back began to rise until they stuck out all over his body and made David think of a porcupine.

"Only I can't throw them like my cousin Porcupine does," he laughed, smoothing out his hair again. "I don't bother folks unless I'm provoked. Then let them look out, for I'll surely give them trouble if they are looking for it. I'll fight them to death. But you can come through this woods any time, David, and I'll always be glad to see you," and turning around, Mr. Pecary bounded off through the bushes.

"Goodness, I'm glad you introduced me to that fellow," laughed David, and bidding Happy Giggles good-bye, David hurried on home.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A STRIKING CONTRAST—The Lord lifteth up the meek; he casteth the wicked down to the ground.—Psalm 147:6.

PRAYER—O Lord, the meek are blessed for Thou dost show them Thy way and guide them in judgment.

The Aversion to Work.

Formerly the fellow who wouldn't work became a tramp. Many of these fellows would rather suffer sharp rather than work. So they wandered from door to door, and the frightened housewives handed out sandwiches and mince pie, fearing that if such a one was refused, he would set their buildings afire.

The number of people who have this hatred of work does not grow any less. The number tends to increase, as sporting life increases, and so many ways of having a good time are offered. But not many of the work haters are content to beg now. They want more than can be had in that slow old way. So many of them are going off on the crooked path.

They conceive the idea that by deeds of crime, they can obtain easy money for the sports and vices that they want. So they drift into that great underworld that lies in wait planning deeds of crime. The life of steady toil is too monotonous for them. They want what they want when they want it, and they propose to have it at any cost.

Some people used to claim that these deeds were mostly committed by young men who were in the war. But the majority of them are committed by fellows who were too young to have served them. It is the reckless act of rash youth, for as soon as fellows get a little older, they know better.

Someone should get hold of these fellows, and impress the idea on them that the community has the utmost contempt for people of this type. It would throw them out of the country if it could, but as no country wants them, the only thing is to lock them up in jail, which is sure to be done. Work is the law of life, and those that shirk it to go in for crime will have no friends among decent people, and the community will give them the treatment reserved for outlaws and enemies of society.

The Flapper Gone.

According to a statement issued from the Junior League, the flapper type of girl is disappearing. Inquiries made in 35 cities, show that the more conspicuous and undesirable traits of young women are less in evidence, and that instead we have girls of more poise and dignity.

Conditions immediately following the war tended to break down self restraint, and produced ill regulated young people of both sexes. Those who have come up later seem to take training from their families with a little more respect for the wisdom of age. But there are still a great many weak parents who allow their children to do as they please, and such families will no doubt always produce the flapper type in both sexes.

The Continent of Peace.

Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the American delegation to the Pan-American conference, told the delegates at that meeting, that the United States would gladly join with the rest of these American nations in outlawing all wars of aggression on this continent.

It would be a wonderful demonstration of the possibilities of peace, if all wars could stop on our side of the world. It would show to the war torn peoples of Europe, that their quarrels, which have so impeded the cause of civilization all over the world, are wholly futile and needless.

The Month of Wind.

The month of March is dawning on us, and as a whole it has been an unpopular month, a windy sort of time when you are likely to get dust blown in your eye, when your winter tile will get its finish by being bumped along the gutter. A time also when the old fashioned woman used to worry mightily about the unruly conduct of her skirts, but that is ancient history.

There are some blustery days in March, as the change of seasons stirs up the air currents. But that blowy wind pushes a lot of oxygen into your tired lungs, worn by the unhealthy conditions of indoor living.

Meanwhile old Mr. Sun is climbing higher in the heavens every day, saying some very sweet things, with the returning bird songs that he brings, and enticing people out to get ready for their summer sports and labors. It is a month of hope and promise, and we always welcome it here in Ohio.

HERE'S A DREAM

HERE'S a Sparkling, noisy Stream
Bringing back
My ethereal dream,
Ships I sent out
On its crest,
Now my soul's again
At rest
For my dreams are Home again,
Weathered storm
And baffled rain;
"Ah," you say,
"A lucky chap
Fate has not tossed
You a rap!"
Lucky? No, but years
Have brought Experience that Life has taught,
All my ships
Did not unfold
Priceless treasures
In their hold,
But they came
Again to me
In my frantic
Misery
Showing me some
Silly thing
That I wanted them
To bring—
Ships when they Come home
Teach me
How I really ought To be—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Send some countless
Thousand ships
Sailing forth, before
Life slips,
All these ships may
Not come home—
Ships sometimes
Delight to roam—
But the ones
You find
Will show
You the proper way
To go.

Archibald MacLeish says a poem should be palpable, and so it should, but we can think of a lot of things we'd rather eat.

Everyone should go home at least once a month and find out how many rooms they have in their house, and know their own beds.

Middle age, says Bob Ryder, who ought to know his subject, is that period in life when you may catch a friend's cold by kissing her but aren't nearly so likely to as formerly.

Middle age protects a lot of people from a lot of things, Bob. The trouble is, we're still too susceptible.

THE JAZZ SINGER

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. pictureization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

The New York Ghetto seethes with the activities of preparation for the celebration of Yom Kippur, the most important Jewish holiday. Tantor Rabinowitz, a man revered by all the Lower East Side for his religious devotion and his knowledge of Hebrew music, has called his choir boys to the Orchard Street Synagogue for a final rehearsal before the services. To his disgust he finds them listening to his greatest abomination, jazz music. He looks for his son, Jakie, and at that moment a baseball strikes the window and Jakie appears, trembling in fear of his father's wrath.

"Jakie!" The Cantor's voice vibrated with anger. "I couldn't help it, papa," the boy stammered, cringing in fear. "I didn't mean to hit it so hard. Honest, I didn't!"

The old man raised his hand as though to strike. The students on the benches looked expectantly from father to son, hoping for the added diversion of punishment for Jakie, and thus a prolongation of the beginning of their lessons. As Jakie saw his father's menacing attitude he ducked. But the hand dropped.

"Go!" The Cantor waved the boy to his seat. "I fix you good next time."

Jakie stared at his father, but the scholars were already being lined up for their singing lesson, and the child took his accustomed his father, held no essence of pleasantness for the young singer. "But papa," the child finally managed to blurt out, "I don't want to be no Cantor."

"What! No Cantor!" The bearded singer gasped, unwilling to believe that his ears had heard aright. Why, this was pure blasphemy. He swallowed hard, and then smiled sarcastically.

"So! And you didn't want you should be a Cantor, what'll you go to be?" He waited for an answer to a question which he regarded as unanswerable.

Jakie decided to take his stand. He looked up at his father courageously.

"I want to be a singer in a theater," he proclaimed, ducking again as though expecting the wrath of the ancients to fall upon his head.

The Cantor stared at the boy in amazement. He raised his hands in horror at the very thought. A Rabinowitz a singer in a theater! "For five generations has been a Rabinowitz a Cantor," he burst out. "I teach you to be one! And you—you should be a common actor in a lowlife theater!"

His beard bristled. He rushed for his son, shaking his fists excitedly. But the boy stood his ground, gazing steadfastly at his father. The older man halted suddenly, looking down on the child. Then his arms dropped to his sides. The tears came into his eyes. He turned away, shaking his head sorrowfully.

place among the others. "Cantor Rabinowitz called them to attention. He walked over to the piano and struck a note. A song sound issued forth. The master smiled disdainfully—sorrowfully, even. From his inside coat pocket he produced an old-fashioned tuning fork, struck it on the side of the piano, and held it to his ear. "M-m-m-m!" he hummed, giving the boys the key. "Nu, follow me!" The Cantor poured forth a wailing chant in his deep, resonant voice, imitated by his pupils. But he watched carefully that all mouths opened and sang lustily. And when one child looked longingly toward the window his reward was a cuff on the ear.

"O! Don't I say yet you should sing—no make monkey business!" The Cantor burst out. The boys who had been grinning and nudging each other, shuffling their feet and wriggling about, quickly turned their eyes front as they heard the Cantor's words, and took up the chant with renewed vigor. But as unwilling as the spirit was the flesh. The students turned again and again to look out the window. They could hear faintly the outside sounds, the shouts of their playmates, the bustle of the streets.

The Cantor shook his head impatiently. "Stop! Stop!" he called, raising his fists and shaking them in the air. "Go! You sound like crazy cats crying already!" The erstwhile scholars, scuffling noisily, made a beeline for the door, relieved. Jakie snatched his cap and began a hasty exit. But his father was quicker. The Cantor grabbed the boy by the shoulder, and held him firmly. Jakie followed the disappearing figures of his playmates with tearful eyes. When the last one had closed the door the father faced his son about.

"For why you should be playing so?" The irate parent pointed to the broken window. The child backed away, shaking his head miserably. But the Cantor's anger was already changing to sadness.

"A fine Cantor you should become—smashing Synagogue windows yet!" The boy looked up at his father, debating as to his answer. To him the future of Cantor in a Synagogue, so carefully planned out and so hopefully looked forward to by cry in it—a voice that could even bow chant the prayers and songs that generation after generation had built upon the hot stones of the Walling Wall of Jerusalem. A voice that, with his teaching, could crown with glory all the five generations of the Rabinowitz Cantors. He sat down heavily on the hard bench, his body swaying backward and forward, his hands clenched on his bowed head. Mourning and suffering in his heart.

CHAPTER II

For several seconds Jakie stood silently regarding the bent figure of his father. He realized, young as he was, that he had severely wounded "the papa"—had struck with a knife that twisted brutally in the old man's heart. But with the logic of the Ghetto child, reared amid the cruelty of the city street, old even in his youngness, he had formulated only one idea: had come to hold only one tenet—state your cause, choose your side, and fight for it. And so, in this instance, he had followed his philosophy: he knew what he wanted and got it he would.

Awkwardly, as though fearful of disturbing a sleeper, the boy tiptoed over to the benches and picked up his cap. He opened the door softly, looking back on the aged figure on the bench and, as it did not move, stole out into the cold hallway and down the steps to the street. He gazed up and down the bustling thoroughfare and took a deep breath, as though throwing all his cares and sorrows to the wind. The night singer, hurrying steps, he bolted through the crowd of shoppers, without stopping until he had reached his destination.

At last he halted before a pair of swinging doors, beneath which he could glimpse a number of shifting feet, easing themselves on a fat, brass rail. He could hear the sounds of heavy-bottomed glasses sliding and thudding deftly on a mahogany top. The fetid odor of stale beer, intermingling with the pungent fumes of many cheerful glasses, assailed his nostrils. From the side door, marked "family entrance," issued forth a buxom matron, a small tin bucket in her hand, "rushing the growler." In her wake came the sound of laughing voices and the thrum of a squeaking piano, blatantly shrilling the uneven rhythm of a rag-time tune. (To be continued)

Friendship School Bags Sent To Mexico

NEW YORK Feb. 28.—(UP)—The project of sending Friendship School Bags to Mexico, a new work by the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, has received approval of high educational authorities, representatives of the Federal Council of Churches here said today. Committees, groups and individuals in many sections are interested in the work said Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, secretary of the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches in a statement. The Committee on World Friendship Among Children was instituted by the Council in order more effectively to carry on these "adventures" in creating international friendliness, he explained.

"Orders for Friendship School Bags already are coming in," he said. "The office of the Committee at 289 Fourth avenue, New York City, which handled the interchange of dolls with Japan, already is swamped with new work."

Plain Facts About Investments INDUSTRIAL STOCKS

By W. S. COUSINS, International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—An income yield of from 5½ to 6 per cent or fractionally higher can be secured at this time through the purchase of a select list of preferred stocks of American industrial stocks and enterprises which over a period of ten years or more have safely covered their dividend requirements on their so-called senior stocks.

Though containing less of the speculative element than the common stocks of the same companies these preferred stocks provide a fairly safe and profitable avenue for the employment of surplus funds of individuals and corporations. Their liquidity is of course a valuable feature, holders of the stock being in a position at almost all times to convert their holdings into cash, should they find it necessary or desirable to do so.

Modern methods of corporation publicity have enabled the holders of industrial stocks to keep in fairly close touch with the enterprises standing behind their security holdings. They are able to ascertain, from half-year to half-year, and often at the end of each quarter, to what extent the enterprise in which they are financially interested is keeping up with past records, falling behind, or going ahead.

Needless to say, investors should have no part in providing funds, through stock purchasing, for the corporations which refuse to publish such information. Old fogeyism in corporation publicity is a handicap which no progressive organization can carry, if it expects to successfully bid for the investment funds of American investors.

"The public be damned" attitude of the old corporation barons is as dead as the autocrats of the past generation who gave expression to it, and dared to have themselves quoted as advocating a policy of exclusiveness in public corporation affairs.

Many of the largest and strongest industrial corporations in the country have issued a limited volume of preferred stocks to investors who are interested primarily in a steady income rather than the expectation of a speculative profits which may or may not accompany the purchase of common stock in their enterprises. As a rule, the dividend records of these stocks is excellent, in many cases stretching back half a century and more. The following are suggested:

60-Year-Old Woman Visited Whole World In Tramp of 20 Years

PLYMOUTH, Feb. 28.—(INS)—

A 60-year-old woman walker has arrived at Plymouth who has just completed the final lap of a lifetime's wandering around the world. She has been "on tramp" for 20 years.

Miss Gertrude Benham has visited practically every country in the world, and has set foot in many parts of Africa where no white woman has been before.

"Twenty years ago," says Miss Benham, who looks astonishingly well and has a complexion like a young girl's, "I was attracted by the grandeur of the Swiss mountains. That started me off on a quest for beauty in nature and the search has gone on ever since."

"I am a lone wanderer. I have no home in the sense that is generally understood. Yet I am never lonely. My needs are few, and I can afford to go wherever I want to go. On an average I never spend more than $1,250 a year."

Many thrilling adventures have befallen this intrepid woman wanderer. In the African bush she has had many escapes from wild animals.

Sir Harold Mackintosh, head of the famous Mackintosh candy-manufacturing firm says: "The confectionary trade has been severely hit recently by the modern trend of fashion."

"The day has gone by when women would stay indoors all afternoon and evening and consume large quantities of candy. Today they think about their figure and ration themselves with perhaps one or two pieces, followed by a drink of lemon water to keep them slim.

"The increase of smoking among women has also meant that fewer sweets are eaten. Again, the vast sums spent on hairdressing and on stockings by the modern miss has meant that less money is available for candy. We have to meet this competition and revise prices accordingly."

Added Large Territory

The treaty for the Gadsden Purchase was signed December 30, 1853. It negotiated the purchase by the United States from Mexico of a strip of land 500 miles long and 120 miles wide, now forming part of Arizona and New Mexico.

HOWE ABOUT?

By ED. W. HOWE

© Bell Syndicate, WNU Service

Probably you have observed that all the great poets have devoted their talents to fancy; I cannot recall one who devoted many lines to the commoner and more important things of life.

Shakespeare, who shines among them as the sun shines among candles, was a toady and crawled humbly before royalty. He had no appreciation of ordinary affairs, or of their prime importance. He hated the common people, although he belonged with them by birth. He exploited kings, courts, battles, intrigues, follies, assignation and assassination.

Such justice as we have was accomplished by common men with pikes, and not pens, in their hands. Lately we have a literature of business, and modern literary men revile it. One of them in England has just made a great fuss because other than trained literary men are permitted to write for print.

I have often thought many of the wise men of antiquity, whom we are expected to venerate, really had little sense. One of them said there is no degree in virtue; that one is either a good man or a rogue. Certainly a foolish statement. Every one is somewhat tigersh, and his success in life depends on the percent he attains in becoming a tame animal.

A good deal of fun is made of "Main street men." I confess I like them. Thousands of them as smart and agreeable as Sinclair Lewis, their principal critic. . . . And far more useful. All the best people come out of the trials, tribulations and experiences of Main street.

Get all you can out of life with good health, good conduct, and good work. But when a laugh isn't due, don't laugh. I knew a man once who lost an important promotion because he was too much devoted to sunshine on cloudy days. Don't be merry when other things are clearly indicated.

Every Communist with whose writing I am familiar has been indignant because rich people do not give him something.

Many a woman who needs only a short fast, and more suitable food thereafter, is easily persuaded that a surgical operation will cure her. Most of the poor men I know complain of debts they owe doctors for operations.

Natural women are so admirable, useful, agreeable, that many a man willing to give a million dollars for one is afraid to risk it; in these days of flappers and suffragettes.

IN SOCIETY

MISS ALLISON DELAPLAINE, SOCIETY EDITOR

W. C. T. U. Meets

A most enjoyable meeting of the Circleville W. C. T. U. was held Thursday evening in the M. E. church parlors. At 6:00 o'clock a delicious picnic dinner, served cafeteria style, was heartily enjoyed by all present. The table was prettily decorated with potted plants and a large white cake. Later, Rev. Franklin McElfresh presented the cake and flowers to Mrs. Mary H. Dunlap, as a loving tribute from the Union.

After the delightful social hour, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lulu Marion. After devotionals and a short business session, Mrs. Bessie Long took up the Frances E. Willard Memorial program. Mrs. Abbie Gorman gave a reading, "The Saint and the Seer," based on the life of Miss Willard. Mrs. May Critch read a poem, "Frances E. Willard." Little Betty Leist sang a solo, "Long, Long Ago." Reading, "Frances Willard and the Children," Mrs. Egleston. Mrs. Bessie Long then gave a blackboard character sketch of Miss Willard. Mrs. Egleston and Mrs. Mack Noggle sang a beautiful duet, "Come, Holy Spirit."

The rest of the evening was given over to Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president of the W. C. T. U., who gave some reminiscences from the life of Mrs. Mary Dunlap, which she gleaned from an old county secretary book, which showed many interesting facts of the early work of the Union, and the important part played in it by Mrs. Dunlap. As one writer has said, "We should leave foot prints on the sands of time," and the Circleville Union will make every effort to follow in the footsteps of the beloved Mrs. Dunlap, who accomplished so much in the W. C. T. U.

Circleville Visit Of Chanters Subject Of Interesting Article

The recent visit of the Aladdin Chanters of Columbus to Circleville is the subject of an interesting article in "Aladdin's Lamp," publication of the Columbus Shrine club. The article is as follows:

Aladdin Chanters were entertained by the Eastern Star ladies and the Masonic brethren of Circleville, Tuesday evening, Jan. 24.

There were 80 in the Aladdin party which left the Scioto Valley Traction station in Columbus for Circleville on a special train, at 5:40 p. m. Arriving in Circleville the guests were immediately conducted to the dining room of the Masonic Temple, where the Eastern Star ladies served a truly wonderful chicken dinner. Even "Red" Anderson was satisfied!

After a social hour, the Chanters took the stage and sang a program which was heartily received. Under the musically leadership of Noble Robert W. Roberts, the boys sang some of the old timers and a number of new songs, most of them taken from the December ceremonial opera, "Our Mary" written specially for the Chanters by Nobles Zirkel and McCullough.

Without exception, the soloists were in excellent voice. It would be useless to try to comment on them individually as what one would say of one would apply to all. It was truly a feast of artists.

Among the show numbers were "Lonesome Time," by Noble McCollam and chorus; "My Sunkist Sue," by Noble Hamilton, quartet and chorus; "When You Know You're Forgotten," by Noble Carpenter and chorus; "Our Mary," by Noble Carson and chorus; "My Sunshine of Old Kentucky," by Noble McLaughlin, quartet and chorus, and "Someone," duet by Nobles Carpenter and Chrysler and chorus.

The Chanters also sang "The Song of the Marching Men," "Bells of St. Marys," "Jolly Shriners," "Ohio," "Old King Cole," "Opening Chorus," and Zirkel and McCullough's recent song hit "Wondering," with Noble Griffith singing the solo.

The audience proved to be so receptive and jolly that Past Potentate Kuhns requested Noble Malcolm McCollam to add to the gaiety of the occasion by giving his pantomime from "Our Mary." After considerable hesitation Noble McCollam very gracefully responded, much to the enjoyment of all present.

Potentate Murphy was then introduced by Past Potentate Kuhns and two reels of moving pictures showing Aladdin's work with the crippled children, were then shown with Potentate Murphy explaining. These pictures seemed to make a deep impression as they indeed deserved. They show the progress of a wonderful work begun by Aladdin Temple in the last few years at the small cost of 60 cents to each member of the Temple.

Dr. Murphy devotes many hours to this work and donates his services. The work was originally begun by Past Potentate Kuhns, who still takes an active interest in it. Incidentally, every Noble of Aladdin Temple should be proud of this work and of those who carry it on.

These movie films were taken specially for Aladdin and the picture machine was ably handled by Noble Fred H. Seeliger.

The Chanters again had the floor and sang the "Big Medley" and "When Shall We Meet Again" after which the special cars were again boarded and a very happy and well fed lot of Chanters and their ladies left for Columbus. It seems to the reviewer these trips are of great value to the Masonic fraternity in the various localities visited, as well as being of value to Aladdin Temple. Arrangements were ably handled by the Circleville brethren and the thanks of the Columbus party are theirs for their courteous and fraternal entertainment.

The singing of the Chanters on this occasion was above the very high average they maintain and great credit should go to Director Roberts and his corps of assistants; to President Pugh and to Accompanist Grabill, whose ability is well known to all the Aladdin Nobility.

Senator C. C. Chappellear, an esteemed member of Aladdin, and a resident of Circleville, aided the Eastern Star ladies in receiving and welcoming the Chanters.

LOCAL THEATER IS LEADING COLUMBUS

Mark up a score for the Circleville theater, The Metropolitan, against all Columbus theaters. The Metropolitan last night and again tonight will play "The Divine Woman." And the new Ohio theater in Columbus, owned by Loew's and United Artists, is using this picture when it opens its doors for the first time, March 17.

That puts Circleville and the management of the Met several weeks ahead of Columbus.

HAHN, PELTZER AND CONGER TO REVEAL SPEED

Fleet Runners Will Show Their Wares On Indoor Track at New York City.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
L. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The army that travels on its stomach and the soldier who sleeps on his watch may have a new gymnast in the act of tomorrow night in the runner who wins on his elbow. The elbow, you know, used to be something at which one kept old family retainers and beautiful women, although I don't mind saying that I almost never use my elbow on the latter.

That, however, has little to do with the fact that Lloyd Hahn will race the Herr Doktor Peltzer and Ray Conger tomorrow night, except that both of the latter somehow were born with a complete set of elbows. This not only lends them an air of distinction but gives the defeated runner a chance to explain in full. The current indoor season has been rife, as we say at the fruit stand, with stories of this kind and, in a spirit of helpfulness, I suggest that when they run their mile of the century tomorrow night they have Elbows McFadden, the old lightweight, as one of the judges at the finish.

Elbow Matches

In this way, it is hoped to eliminate the "long count" that followed in the wake of these contests: Ray Dodge versus the Herr Doktor's elbow.

Lloyd Hahn versus Ray Conger's. It may or may not be significant that the runner who won both of these races was generously conceded a victory in the elbow contest by the defeated runner; so that it might appear that Hahn is taking on at least one elbow too many tomorrow night. But the experts, after due deliberation, have decided that an elbow operates rearward only and that Hahn will be in the rear like a front door step.

They have him all set to exact due revenge on his boy friend, Conger, who made him walk home in that famous 1,000 yard event at Kansas City. They also think he knows too much about indoor running for the Doktor. The latter, in making his world's 1,500 meter record against Nurmi and Wide, was running at the rate of about 4.10 for the mile, but this distance not only is a little long for him but the average indoor track also is a little short for his stride.

Peltzer Ready

Peltzer is "ready," according to the word that comes from his training quarters at Georgetown university, but conditions and distances are too much to Hahn's

DELANEY HARD AT WORK WITH BOUT NEARING

Bridgeport Adonis Keeps Up Heavy Training For Battle With Tom Heeney.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(INS)—Despite the fact that Jack Delaney is down to a razor edge for his important heavyweight engagement with Tom Heeney here next Thursday night, the Bridgeport Adonis is sticking to a rather strenuous training program. Heeney announced that he was through with boxing after sparring for four rounds yesterday at a local gymnasium, but Delaney will again work out with his sparring partners today in Bridgeport.

After seven rounds of boxing yesterday, Delaney was pronounced physically fit by Deputy Eddie Curry and Secretary Bert Stand, of the New York State Athletic Commission. When Delaney weighed in at 175 3-4 pounds, however, there was a buzz of comment. A few days ago Jack's weight was unofficially reported as 182 pounds. Boxing experts today expressed the opinion that Delaney is naturally a light heavyweight and may never get much heavier.

Heeney weighed 197 yesterday. The New Zealander expects to weigh in Thursday at about 195 pounds. Delaney is therefore facing a weight handicap of from fifteen to twenty pounds.

Heeney is gaining many supporters who are backing him to win on endurance. They think the fifteen-round route will be Delaney's undoing, but Jack is still a 7 to 5 favorite.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

Dr. Otto Peltzer returns to the track tomorrow night for what will be his farewell competitive appearance in this country.

The German champion has trained seriously for the special mile run at the Knights of Columbus games, and it must not be supposed lightly that he will follow anyone across the finish line.

A victory for Dr. Peltzer would be a popular one, for he has proved himself a sportsman—despite the tendency of reporters to misquote him.

The race should be the climax of the indoor track season, no matter who wins. The make-up of the field is uncertain, for Lloyd Hahn has been quoted as saying he would never run against Ray Conger. The latter is at the peak of good form, and has one victory over Dr. Peltzer already to his credit.

Lloyd Hahn ran up a string of 32 consecutive victories before Conger caught him in Kansas City. It was unfortunate that Hahn should have felt that he had been fouled, for the Iowa State runner not only defeated the Nebraskan, but set a new world's record for 1,000 yards. Hahn walked to the finish and later lodged a protest with the A. A. U. "Conger is not a sportsman," said Hahn afterwards.

These grudges merely serve to lend interest to the proceedings, if you like your running with a bit of spice.

Ray Dodge and Doc Peltzer collided on one of the Madison Square Garden turns in the Millrose games, and the American claimed afterwards that he had been fouled. He and the German were supposed to be running a grudge race in Chicago as a result, but Conger stepped in and took the play away from both of them by winning. Dr. Peltzer defeated Dodge for a second time, which should satisfy Ray for the time being.

The track will be all elbows if the German starts in the same race with Conger, Dodge and Hahn.

If many more races are marred by fouls or claims of foul, it may be necessary for the referee to warn the contestants and issue a set of instructions before the starting gun, just as the referee of a prize-fight lays down the law in mid-ring before the opening bell.

It doesn't take much of a nudge to throw a runner off his stride, and when you are running against Lloyd Hahn or Doc Peltzer a stride is a long way to be behind. Trying to catch up with either of them within a mile or so is a job for any runner.

The German, I believe, worries less about his stride than Hahn. He gallops along with all his might, whereas the Nebraskan gives the impression of studious pace and accuracy of timing, somewhat reminiscent of the great Paavo Nurmi.

Nurmi, incidentally, is going in for the longer runs. He wants to try the marathon at next summer's Olympics, but his advisors are likely to urge him to confine his activities to the 1,500, 3,000, 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs as well as the tame race and the cross country. Paavo won four such events in 1924.

Both Dr. Peltzer and Lloyd Hahn have in mind the 800 and 1,500 metres at Amsterdam. The German will be much better out of doors, where his tremendous stride need not be clipped to suit the vagaries of a banked board track.

Jack Hobbs, Cricketer, Babe Ruth of England Quits Drinking, Smoking

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(INS)—

"No player or athlete can give of his best in any game or sport who does not practice moderation in drinking, smoking and eating," says Jack Hobbs, famous cricketer, who might be termed the "Babe Ruth of England," in a message to the Congressional monthly.

"Fitness," says Hobbs, "is only to be attained by careful living, and moderation in all things that minister to the well-being of the body.

"I have now personally abstained from the use of alcohol for about two years. I am sure that my general health has benefited, and that my cricket has not suffered, although I am carrying on at a time when most cricketers have retired.

"The very summit of physical fitness must be the ambition of the athlete, and if indulgence in alcohol and tobacco, however small, interfere they should be ruthlessly cut out."

FOUR MATCHES ON SCHEDULE FOR MAT FANS

Plenty of Action Is Ahead For Those Who See Grapplers at C. A. C. Tonight.

A big evening is in store for wrestling fans at the C. A. C. tonight.

Four fast matches have been arranged with Beighler and Montana tangle in the main event, two out of three falls with no time limit.

Merle Dolby and Sheik Sims will wrestle two out of three falls, with a 40-minute time limit. This match should be the best of the evening, as the boys are both, fast and each thinks he is better than the other. Dan Copen, who scored such a quick fall over Lathrop, last time, will wrestle Ray Phillips, who thinks he can throw Copen as quickly as Copen threw Lathrop. They will go a 20 minute time limit bout. Jack Landers, the state lightweight champion, will open the show opposing Joe Snyder, that cute little boy from Lancaster.

Popular prices prevail, with ladies free, and kids a dime. The show starts at 8:15 o'clock.

CONDITIONS IN MINING FIELDS ARE DEPLORED

Situation in Pennsylvania Declared to Be Blotch on American Civilization

INDIANA, Pa., Feb. 28 — (INS) Conditions in the strike-torn Pittsburgh district soft coal fields "are a blotch upon American civilization," Senator Gooding (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate coal investigating committee, declared here.

Gooding's statement was issued after consultation with the three other senators accompanying him, and was the first public report by the committee on its five-day investigation in the coal region.

"It is inconceivable that such squalor, suffering, misery and distress should be tolerated in the heart of one of the richest industrial centers of the world," Gooding said.

"The committee found men, women and children lying in hovels which are more unsanitary than a modern swine-pen. They are breeding places of sickness and crime.

"They constitute fertile fields for the sower of communism and other doctrines which teach the overthrow of the American government. Industrial leaders of America cannot permit such conditions to continue.

"The dispute in the Pittsburgh soft coal fields is more than a local fight between a union and a group of coal operators. It is an industrial war that affects conditions which the committee has found in its first-hand survey in the coal mines and camps."

The committee today turned its search-light on the central Pennsylvania fields. It was particularly interested in the injunctions issued by Judge J. N. Langham of the state court of common pleas. One of the resisting orders prohibited the striking miners from congregating to sing hymns in the yard of the Magyar Presbyterian church at Rossiter, 28 miles from here. The miners also were enjoined from picketing, marching or inserting advertisements in newspapers about the strike.

Lawrence's Book About Arabia Will Be Filmed By a British Company

LONDON, Feb. 28 — (INS) — As the result of many months of negotiation, a British film company has obtained the rights to make a motion picture of the story of Lawrence of Arabia, based on Col. T. E. Lawrence's own book, "Revolt in the Desert."

Lawrence gained world-wide fame through his part in the Arab revolution, and his books on the subject have enjoyed tremendous popularity. It is understood that an American film company bid $150,000 for the film rights to "Revolt in the Desert" but that this offer was turned down in favor of one made by a new British film syndicate, of which Collingswood Hughes, the author and lecturer, is the head.

"Old Man Stagg" At 67, To Send New "Singing Maroons" Into Field

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 — (INS) — Almost any day an old man with steady legs and a stern face may be seen running for five blocks from his home to Bartlett gymnasium on the University of Chicago campus.

His skin has the glow of youth; his chest rises and falls with the rhythm of a college athlete.

He is A. Stagg, former Yale football star and for 35 years coach at the University of Chicago. Despite his sixty-seven years he still can run a block with the speediest freshman on the Maroon squad and he plays tennis almost daily for almost eight months of the year.

Is Still Popular

In the wake of several disastrous seasons on the gridiron, Coach Stagg is more popular and beloved than ever at Chicago. He enters 1928 with years of alumni and newspaper criticism of his methods entirely silenced and his supporters both in and outside of the university are more loyal than ever in his record-breaking period of service as an athletic director.

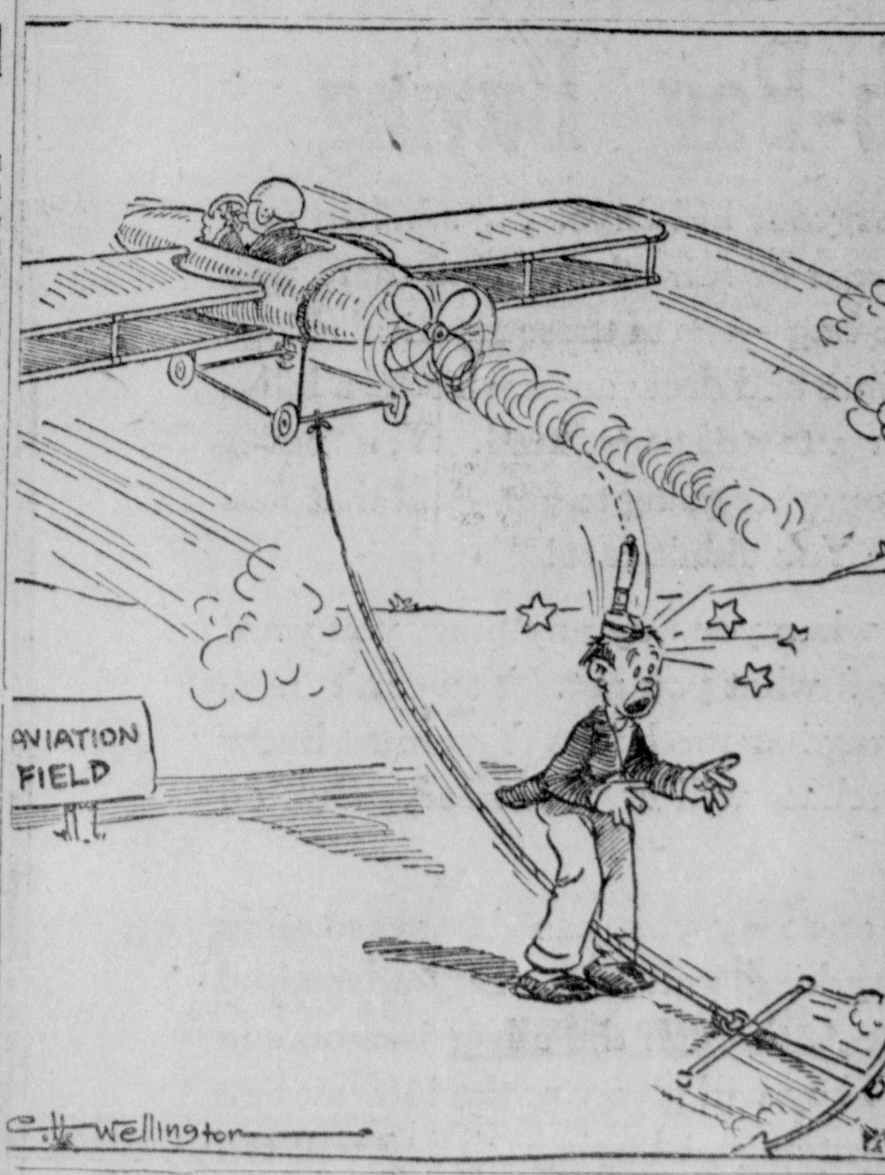

The veteran coach is said to have only three guiding rules in his own life and in his instruction methods. He believes in clean living—physical fitness—clean thinking and thirdly, singing.

Stagg never drinks, smokes or swears and he always has a kindly thought and word for friends and enemies alike. He does not tolerate swearing either on or off the football field.

His mania for singing and his belief that the inspiration of a rousing song is a great aid to his eleven has brought him much ridicule and abuse but the "Singing Maroons" will continue probably for all time at Chicago.

It is now related that only athletes eligible for the "C" button receive that award who are able to sing the "Song of the C," the official anthem of the athletic bodies. A star athlete recently was not given a "C" button when he failed in his "recital" after called before stagg to render the "C" song. An All-American football back lost his

Training Camp Briets

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., Feb. 28 — (INS) — Members of the New York Giants who have been "boiling out" here will leave today for the regular training camp at Augusta, Ga. In the first practice game of the season, two scrub teams battled to a 2 to 2 tie yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA., Feb. 28 — (INS) — The New York Yankees will hold their first regular workout today, if Jupiter Pluvius is agreeable. Rain practically ruined the opening day festivities yesterday. The Yanks will have two sets of twins this season—the home run twins and the Moore brothers. Nick Moore, Rookie Pitcher, is almost a ringer for his famous brother, Wiley.

Big Handicap

The woman was playing golf one fair day, and, although her score was assuming alarming proportions, her enjoyment of the sunny weather and the invigorating exercise kept her from becoming quite too downcast.

"Well," she confided to her companion, as she trudged off into the rough after a particularly poor drive, "I understand there's a woman at the club who has a handicap of 80. I shall have to look her up."

This remark seemed to make a profound impression on the caddy, who, against all regulations, contributed his ideas on the subject. "Holy smoke!" he cried, "she must play in de thousands!"—New York Sun.

LONG FIGHT FOR ADEQUATE AIR FORCE FOR U. S. APPEARS TO BE WON

BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS FAVOR PLANS

Total of $26,808,000 Probably Will Be Appropriated For Army Flyers.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHISON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The long fight for an adequate American air force appeared won today with congress appropriating $26,808,000 for army aviation in the coming fiscal year.

This item, featured the war department appropriation bill, totaling $400,000,000, which went to conference today to iron out differences between the house and senate. Both branches however were agreed upon the necessity for developing a great air force to protect the United States from its potential enemies in the future.

The appropriation of millions of dollars for new airplanes and for the training of army aviators was in sharp contrast to the meager fund given this branch of the national defense in previous years. The change represented a victory for Colonel "Billy" Mitchell, former stormy petrel of the army air service, who dared a court-martial two years ago to arouse the American people to the need for a greater air service.

Senate More Liberal
The house treated army aviation with extreme liberality but the senate went a little further. In addition to approving a $24,000,000 house appropriation, the senate set aside two funds, totaling $2,178,000, already appropriated, to be used by army aviation.

Both branches also authorized the chief of the air corps to enter contracts for $5,000,000 worth of new airplanes for delivery in 1939. This made a grand total of nearly $32,000,000 to be spent on appropriation.

The new liberality can best be illustrated by the fact that a few years ago, the appropriation for new airplanes was only $45,000. In the new bill, the house appropriated $11,257,445 to day for new aircraft, while the senate approved this and set aside another $1,160,000 for new bombardment planes.

Both house and senate likewise agreed upon a $2,200,000 fund for "experimental and research work with airplanes or lighter-than-air craft and their equipment." This

Her Secret Beautifier Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes:—"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muddy, sallow and pimply skin. Face creams, lotions and beauty treatments failed to improve for any length of time. I found covering blemishes with cosmetics, was only temporary relief. My druggist suggested my trouble might be constipation and recommended CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, a purely vegetable laxative. After a short while I noticed a wonderful difference." 25c and 75c red pkg.
